

SALES · OUTBOUND

Brikk — Cold outreach to individual agents

Email templates, call scripts, LinkedIn messages, and the full 14-day sequence.

Where to find solo agents

- Zillow Premier Agent profiles — search by zip code in Southern California. Public phone and email.
- Realtor.com — same thing, often with email visible.
- LinkedIn Sales Navigator — filter for "Real Estate Agent" + Southern California. Free tier gives you ~30 leads/day.
- Local MLS directories — most regional MLSs publish agent rosters. CRMLS for SoCal.
- Instagram — agents who post regularly are easier to engage warmly than cold-emailing. Reply to a story; don't cold DM.
- Open houses — physically attend. Grab the sign-in agent's card. Follow up the next day by email.

Avoid: scraped purchased lists. Half the addresses are dead, half are spam-trap addresses that will tank your sending domain. Build your own list — 50 hand-picked agents beat 5,000 scraped.

Cold email — three variants

Send no more than 30 cold emails per day from a single domain to protect your sender reputation. Use a tool like Instantly or Lemlist if you scale beyond 100/day. Always warm up a new domain for two weeks before sending volume.

Variant A — Stats hook (use for cold-cold leads)

Subject: 78% of buyers pick the first agent who responds

Hi [first name],

Quick one. The first-response stat for buyers is 78% — yet the average agent takes 15 hours to get back to a new lead. Most agents I talk to in Southern California know this is a problem but don't have time to fix it.

I built Brikk because the existing tools (Lofty, Follow Up Boss) charge $300–500 a month and require six weeks of training. Brikk is $75/month, takes five minutes to set up, and the AI actually drafts the follow-up message for you — you just review and approve.

Worth a 10-minute look? First 45 days are free, no credit card. Reply yes and I'll send the link.

[Your name]

Brikk · brikk.store

Variant B — Local angle (when you know their market)

Subject: Saw your listing on [street name] — quick question

Hi [first name],

Noticed your listing on [street name] in [city] — looks like a solid pickup. I'm reaching out because I built a tool specifically for SoCal agents who are juggling Zillow leads, Open House sign-ins, and referrals without a real system to keep up with them.

It's called Brikk. $75/month, AI writes your follow-ups for you, takes about five minutes to start using. We have a 45-day free trial with no credit card.

If "following up" is something you wish you did better, reply and I'll send a one-pager. If not, no worries — good luck with the [street] listing.

[Your name]
Brikk · brikk.store

Variant C — Soft / friendly (referral or warm-ish)

Subject: [Mutual contact] said I should reach out

Hi [first name],

[Mutual contact] mentioned you're closing serious volume but want to spend less time on follow-up. That's literally what we built.

Brikk is an AI assistant for solo agents — drafts your follow-ups, tracks your deals, tells you who to call each morning. $75 a month. Free for 45 days.

Want me to set you up so you can poke around? I just need an email — takes me 30 seconds, no card.

[Your name]

Subject lines that consistently get opens

- "78% of buyers pick the first agent who responds" — stat hook.
- "Saw your listing on [street]" — personal, local.
- "Quick question for [first name]" — curiosity, low pressure.
- "Worth a 10-minute look?" — frames the ask early.

- "Cutting your Zillow bill in half" — pain point.
- "Better than Lofty for $75" — competitive direct.
- "Forwarded by [name]" — only if true (referral).

Avoid: all-caps, exclamation marks, anything that smells like marketing copy. "GET MORE LEADS!!!" goes to Promotions.

Cold call script

Best time to call: Tuesday-Thursday, 10:30am-12:00pm or 2:00pm-4:00pm. Avoid Mondays, late Fridays, lunch hour.

Opening (15 seconds)

"Hi, is this [first name]? It's [Your name] with Brikk in Southern California — do you have 20 seconds? I'll be quick and you can tell me to go away if it's not for you."

If yes (next 30 seconds)

"Brikk is an AI tool for real estate agents — basically, it does follow-up for you. Most agents I talk to know they should be following up more, but they don't have time or the right words. Brikk reads each lead's full context and drafts the message; you approve and send. $75 a month, 45 days free, no credit card. Is that something you'd want to look at?"

If they say "send me something"

"Will do — what's the best email? While I have you on the line, quick question — what tool are you using for follow-up today?" (Their answer tells you whether to compete with Lofty, push them away from a spreadsheet, or sell them on adding their first system.)

If they say no

"Totally understand. Quick — is it that you've already got something, or that follow-up just isn't a problem for you right now?" (Either answer is useful intel. Either way, end with:) "Appreciate the time. Have a good one."

Voicemail script (you'll get a lot of these)

"Hi [first name], it's [Your name] with Brikk — we make AI follow-up software for SoCal real estate agents. Three out of four buyers pick the first agent who responds, and Brikk gets agents responding in minutes instead of hours. $75 a month, 45 days free, no card. Quick callback at [your number], or check us out at brikk.store. Take care."

Keep voicemails under 22 seconds. Phone number twice — beginning and end. Speak slowly when saying the URL.

LinkedIn DM template (for connect requests)

Connect note (300 char limit):

Hi [first name] — I build an AI follow-up tool for SoCal real estate agents called Brikk. Not pitching, just connecting with agents in the area. Big fan of [specific thing — their post / their listing / their YouTube]

First DM after they accept (wait 24h):

Hey [first name], thanks for connecting. Quick context — Brikk replaces Lofty / FUB for $75 a month and writes your follow-up messages for you using AI. 45 days free, no card. Worth a 10-minute look? No pressure if not.

Follow-up sequence — 5 touches over 14 days

Day 0

Cold email (Variant A or B).

Day 3

Reply to your own thread — bump it with one line: "Following up — did this land? Happy to send the one-pager if not."

Day 5

Cold call. Use the script. Leave a voicemail if they don't pick up.

Day 8

Send a short Loom video (60 seconds) walking through one feature. Subject: "60-second look at what Brikk does."

Day 14

Final break-up email: "Last note from me — I'll stop reaching out after this. If timing changes, brikk.store has the trial. Have a great quarter."

After day 14, drop them into a "check back in 90 days" list. Many agents convert on the second sequence months later.

Booking the demo — what to send when they say yes

"Awesome — two options:

Quick: brikk.store/login — sign up, 45 days free, no card. Takes 5 minutes. Hit reply if you get stuck.

Hand-held: I'll walk you through it in 15 minutes. Pick a time here.

Whichever works."

Always offer the self-serve option first. Agents who self-serve close at higher rates than agents who need a demo.

Tracking outreach

Use Brikk itself. Add each agent as a lead with source = "Outreach". Use the temperature field as your interest signal (hot = replied positively, warm = opened email, cold = no response yet). Eating your own dog food has two benefits: you stay close to the product, and you can demo your live pipeline when a brokerage asks how it works.